Rewrite Cancer Innovation Challenge!

We need you to help us
Rewrite the Cancer story

Together we can innovate, inspire and create change.

Challenge question:

How do we improve awareness and availability of testing in community care and rural settings to ensure patients receive the most appropriate treatment for their cancer?

KCRNC invites you to submit ideas on how this issue can be addressed to improve patient care.

The challenge is a team-based initiative because collaboration often leads to innovative ideas, and teams can be made up of just two people (or more). The winning team(s) will receive a benefit of funds or in-kind services of up to $50,000 CAD to help advance their idea. You can read about last year's winners on their website here

More information on this important initiative can be found here

Are you a healthcare professional working with kidney cancer survivors?

Researchers from the University of Toronto are conducting an online study on physical activity attitudes and counselling practices of kidney cancer healthcare professionals. The online survey takes 10-15 minutes to complete. You must be a practicing healthcare professional, currently working with kidney cancer survivors.

Physical activity research survey

You are invited to participate in a study conducted by researchers from the University of Toronto, assessing kidney cancer healthcare providers' physical activity attitudes and counselling practices.

The goal of this research is to understand how we can best increase physical activity knowledge and counselling in healthcare professionals working with kidney cancer survivors.

Please follow this link to participate in this survey

For questions regarding this survey please contact Linda Trinh
